Artwork by Royanna Robertson
“A Little of This and A Little of That”
Exhibition Dates: December 1, 2009-January 31, 2010

Robertson’s first show at Carina Cellars’ Los Olivos Tasting Room was such a success last year that she is back again just in time for the holidays to display a new selection of her beautiful watercolors. A Santa Barbara resident for 31 years, Robertson’s watercolors display a range of landscapes, still life portraits, animals and California historical landmarks. “I’m not a one-dimensional artist; I’ll paint just about anything I can get in front of me and so my exhibits tend to be comprised of a little of everything,” Robertson said. “It makes it more fun for me, and hopefully, more fun for the people who come to see it.”

Robertson first discovered her love for watercolors when she took an adult ed class with her son several years ago, and from that moment she knew she was hooked. After that class ended she continued to take several more classes and has read through numerous “how to” books. “I find so much joy in painting; I can just escape into a world of colors and imagination and time passes effortlessly.”

“A Little of This and A Little of That” will be on display from December 1 through the end of the year, and until January 31, 2010 in the Carina Cellars Tasting Room at 2900 Grand Avenue in Los Olivos, CA. Along with her watercolors, Robertson will also be displaying a selection of montage photographs as well as her jewelry and wineglass charms, which are available year-round. The Tasting Room is open daily from 11a.m. to 5p.m. For more information go to www.carinacellars.com or call (805) 688-2459.
